Bazalto

Inspired by the Giant's Causeway in Northern Ireland, the Bazalto is a new, fun and creative way to design a modern seating arrangement for every office space. Designed to evoke the feeling of nature, it resembles the form of dried soil in the desert or floating ice sheets in the Arctic - a lot of irregular single forms transform into one large unit.

Group them to make one large seating piece fostering collaboration or arrange them separately to create clusters of small units for more privacy. Combine two different heights - the shorter pouf for a seat and the taller one for a backrest - to achieve perfect solution to office seating needs. The design possibilities are endless and are all up to you.

Designer

Andreas Krob was born in 1969 in Niebüll, Denmark. He studied Industrial Design at the Muthesius Academy of Fine Arts and Design in Kiel. After one semester of studying in Italy he began to work as a freelance designer undertaking orders from different international companies.

In 2002 he settled down in Switzerland and one year later he opened Bureau4Dimensions Krob. The studio focuses on innovative projects in the field of design and architecture. He developed furniture and solutions that are characterized by uniqueness, and also by style fostered over the years.

The company pays special attention to such aspects as: the way of functioning in a space, quality and ergonomics. Each element is made with understanding of its function and significance.

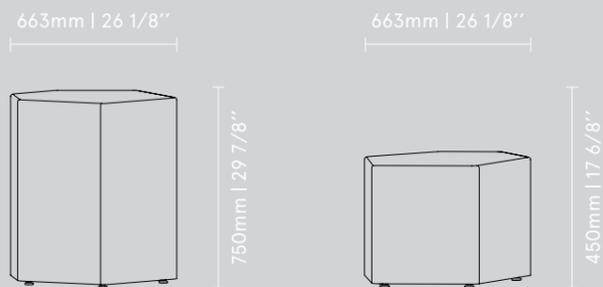

b4K cooperates with leading European companies crafting furniture of high quality.

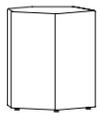

Bazalto Seating

As it features high agility, choose the Bazalto to follow the shifting trends. It's a fresh approach to casual seating, designed to answer a variety of modern office environment demands. Furnish a conference room or entrance hall with the poufs and let their users tailor them to their comfort. Thanks to its modular design, the Bazalto can be used to arrange a breakout area as well. With a wide array of fabric in invigorating colours to choose from, it is easy to personalise.
